Late Publication .- The Man of Faith, or the Harmony of Christian Faith and Christian Character, by John Abercrombic, M. D., author of "An Enquiry concerning the Intellectual Powers," and "The Philosophy of the Moral Feelings." Van Nostrand and Dwight, N. Y. 1835. pp. 117.

We are indebted to the publishers for a copy of this work, which we were prevented from noticing sooner, first by want of time to read it, and afterwards by indisposition. The Biblical Repertory, in a highly commendatory review of it, says: "This is a delightful little volume. It is short and sweet." And we think most, if not all readers will concur in the remark. We are persuaded that no Christian, and no one else who wishes to regulate his affections and form his character upon Christian principles. can read it without being profited, or without being the better qualified to discharge the social duties of society. It is an essay upon 2 Pet. i. 5-7; "And besides, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge, &c." and was written by the author, who is a practising physician, for circulation among the families whom he used to visit in the discharge of his professional duties. The readers of his former publications must have formed from them a very favorable estimate of his private character; but the estimate must be heightened by reading the present volume. We cordially recommend it. The neatness of the mechanical execution does the respectable publishers credit. If, instead of prefixing the present introduction, they had procured Dr. Spring, whose church is near their stores or seme one else of his spirit and talents, to write one on the dependence of the sinner upon his Maker for all gracious affections, it would have enhanced the value of the work for circulation in this country.

We have received the first number of The Common School Assistant, a monthly paper pub. lished at the office of the Cultivator, Albany, N. Y., and designed for the improvement of common school education It is edited by J. Orville Taylor, and furnished to subscribers at the very low price of 50 cents per annum for a single copy; for six copies, $2. 00; and for twenty copies, $5. 00. If the work should be as well conducted as, from the specimen before us, it promises to be, it will be a most valuable publication. There is no art in such common use which seems to us to be so little understood and so wretchedly practised as that of school teaching. Infant schools are the only ones which seem to us to be conduct. ed on proper principles.

We recommend the work to all teachers,especially teachers of the elementary branches of education; and to all Trustees of schools for the benefit of their teachers.

The following very respectable testimonial of it has been given to the publisher:

From the well known character and abilities of the Editor of this paper, and the vital importance of the cause it advocates, we duty to aid in giving the "Common School Assistant" a circulation in every family and school in the Union.

Charleston and Cincinnati Rail Road.

The Kentuckians seem a little jealous of Cincinnati and unwilling to let this road terminate in that city. They wish to confine the wealth which must accumulate at the point of its termination to their own State. A bill to charter a company for constructing the road was before the Legislature of that State at the date of our last accounts. A letter from the seat of government to the Louisville Journal, dated January 18,

An amendment, adopted to-day, provides, that no branch shall be constructed within the limits of the State, except with the consent of our Legislature. Another amend. ment, passed to-day, prohibits the company from constructing a bridge over the Ohio river. Of course the road, even if it goes in the direction of Cincinnati, cannot reach that city, but must stop at Covington or Newport. A third amendment, passed by the House, prescribes, that a branch of the read shall be extended to Louisville, from some point south of the Kentucky river.

Mr. R. Wickliffe, jr. member of the House of Representatives from Lexington, moved, to-day, to strike out Ciccinnati from the rail road charter and to authorize the extension of the work to Louisville. The the magnitude of the interests involved, has been deferred till to-morrow.

A letter to the Cincinnati Whig, dated January 20, says that Louisville, with the assent of Col. Blanding, has been made a poinst of termination for a branch of the road, commencing North West of the Cumberland mountain, but still she is dissatisfied

The same letter adds :

Whether the Bill will finally pass, may be considered somewhat doubtful, although I hink there is now a very fair prospect of such an issue. We (the friends of the measure) are gathering strength every day, and if another week be suffered to elapse before the final disposition is made, there will be no doubt of the passage of the charter, by a handsome majority. If carried in the House, the Senate will assuredly approve it by a large majority.

Governor of North Carolina, Sin: It is with great pleasure that I announce to you, that I concluded a treaty with the Cherokee Nation, in General assembled, at New Echota, Ga., Dec. 29th, 1835. The Treaty provides for the removal of the Indians within two years, and secures to them the peaceable enjoyment of their possessions during this time. It also provides for the immediate survey of the lands, and pre-emption rights to such heads of Cherokee families as desire to live in the States of Alabama, Tennessee and North Carolina, and are qualified to become useful members of society. The other provisions of the treaty are not materially different from the propositions drawn up at Washington last winter, with which you are well acquainted.
